Gains describe the outcomes and benefits your customers want. Some gains are required, expected, or desired by customers, and some would surprise them. Gains include functional utility, social gains, positive emotions, and cost savings.

Use the following trigger questions to help you think of different potential customer gains

-  1. Which savings would make your customers happy? Which savings in terms of time, money, and effort would they value?
-  2. What quality levels do they expect, and what would they wish for more or less of?
-  3. How do current value propositions delight your customers? Which specific features do they enjoy? What performance and quality do they expect?
-  4. What would make your customers' jobs or lives easier? Could there be a flatter learning curve, more services, or lower costs of ownership?
-  5. What positive social consequences do your customers desire? What makes them look good? What increases their power or their status?

-  6. What are customers looking for most? Are they searching for good design, guarantees, specific or more features?
-  7. What do customers dream about? What do they aspire to achieve, or what would be a big relief to them?
-  8. How do your customers measure success and failure? How do they gauge performance or cost?
- 9. What would increase your customers' likelihood of adopting a value proposition? Do they desire
-  lower cost, less investment, lower risk, or better quality?
